

CQ Researcher

The screenshot shows the CQ Researcher Online homepage. The browser address bar displays "The CQ Researcher Online". The page header includes the CQ Press logo, the site name "CQ Researcher", and the tagline "Great research on today's issues starts right here." Below the header is a "QUICK SEARCH" box with a "Go" button and a link to "Advanced Search". On the left side, a navigation menu lists several options: "Advanced Search", "Browse by Topic", "Browse by Date", "Pro/Con", "Issue Tracker", "Index", "Your Profile", "Log In", "E-mail Alerts", "Favorite Documents", "Saved Searches", "Document History", "Reader Comments", "In the News", "Coming Up", "Blog", and "Twitter New!". A callout box with arrows pointing to "Quick Search", "Browse by Topic", "Browse by Date", "Pro/Con", "Issue Tracker", and "Index" contains the following text: "There are several ways to search using CQ Researcher. You can do a Quick Search, Advanced Search, Browse by Topic or by date, find Pros/Cons or use the Issue Tracker. There is also an Index of subjects that can be searched." The main content area features a "CURRENT REPORT" dated "February 05, 2010" with a photo of a man and a link to "Read the Full Report". Below this is a section titled "THE ISSUES" with three bullet points: "Can media companies afford free-press battles?", "Are independent bloggers entitled to free-press protections?", and "Is the era of mass-market objective journalism coming to an end?". At the bottom of the main content area is a "PRO/CON" section. On the right side, there is a "RECENT REPORTS" section with a list of reports including "Professional Football (01/29/10)", "Sex Scandals (01/22/10)", "Government and Religion (01/15/10)", "Animal Rights (01/08/10)", "Housing the Homeless (12/18/09)", "Bilingual Education vs. English Immersion (12/11/09)", "Prisoner Reentry (12/04/09)", and "The Value of a College Education (11/20/09)". Below this is an "IN THE NEWS" section with a link to "Top Defense Officials Support Repeal of 'Don't'".

Quick Search

Advanced Search

To select the Advance Search, click on the link, located in the left column of the homepage.

The homepage features a 'QUICK SEARCH' bar with the text 'global warming' and a 'Go' button. Below this is a 'CURRENT REPORT' section dated February 05, 2010, titled 'Press Freedom: Should partisan bloggers get free-press protections?' by Peter Katel. To the right is a 'RECENT REPORTS' section listing various topics like Professional Football, Sex Scandals, and Government and Religion.

The screenshot shows the 'Advanced Search' page of The CQ Researcher Online. Four numbered annotations explain the search options:

1. To start the Advanced Search, you can enter words or phrases in the search box. You can choose to search by keyword/all text, report titles or topic by placing a mark next to the search you want.
2. A search can be limited by Date Range or Topic by using the designated drop down box under the search box.
3. Another way to limit your search is to search by specific report sections. You can choose to search all sections or choose specific sections by selecting the appropriate box.
4. To complete your search, click on one of the two search buttons, one located at the top of the search next to the search box, or the one below all of the search options.

The search interface includes a search box, a 'Search' button, and radio buttons for 'Keyword/all text', 'Report title only', and 'Topics only'. It also features a 'Date range' section with dropdowns for 'Anytime', 'Month', 'Day', and 'Year', and a 'Topic' dropdown menu. There are checkboxes for 'Search all report sections' and 'Search only specific report sections', with a list of specific sections including Introduction, Outlook, Bibliography, etc. The 'Sort results by' dropdown is set to 'relevancy', and the 'Results per page' is set to '30'. There are two 'Search' buttons and a 'Clear Search' button.

On the right side, there is a 'RECENT REPORTS' section listing various topics with their respective dates.

To Browse by Topic, select the link located in the left column.

Press Freedom
Should partisan bloggers get free-press protections?
By Peter Katel

Wrenching changes in the news business are starting to alter the legal landscape for journalists. The federal Freedom of Information Act and "shield" laws in many states give reporters access to official documents and offer some protections against prosecutors who demand to know their confidential sources or information that reporters have gathered. But amid catastrophic revenue declines, . . .
