Find information using FirstSearch

FirstSearch provides access to a variety of databases, which students and faculty members can use to locate articles as well as print and electronic books. Below is an image of the database page. You can see the list of databases and determine which database is most appropriate for your search.

To find articles, begin by selecting a database. For example, for research topics related to education, select ERIC. On the basic search page, enter the keywords which describe your research topic. Remember to Limit to Full Text by selecting the box at the bottom.
Results

Results are listed by title. From the results page, you can determine the title and author of each document. To learn more about the document, find source information, read the abstract or summary, and access the full text document, click on the title. Click on Full Text, beneath the title on the results page, to access the complete document.

As you browse the list of results, you may notice the results are a combination of reports, guides, popular magazine articles, and other documents. By clicking on the title, you can determine the source of the document and where it was published, as well as the document type. Certain assignments require only academic resources.
To search for information in multiple databases, return to the original search screen and select the databases to search. For this example, ArticleFirst, ERIC and WorldCat will be searched.

After clicking Select, enter your keywords or search terms in the search box, which will appear on the new page. The list of results should look something like the image below. The databases selected (ArticleFirst, ERIC, and WorldCat) will retrieve articles and other documents, as well as books. Be sure to check the source and type of document of each result. Items followed by HERKIMER CNTY COMMUN COLLEGE are available at the Library. Click “See more details for locating this item” and on the next screen, click “Find this item at HCCC” to be linked to the catalog. For items without the HERKIMER CNTY COMMUN COLLEGE icon, click on “See more details for locating this item” and then click “Search for Full Text/Find Copy.”
If the item did not include the `HERKIMER CNTY COMMUN COLLEGE` icon, and if the new window states “No full-text holdings were found for this journal” or “Sorry, no holdings were found for this book” the item can be requested through Interlibrary loan. The HCCC Library will try to find the item in a local library, and request the item be sent to HCCC. To submit an Interlibrary loan request, simply click on the “Submit Interlibrary Loan (ILLiad) Request” link in the window which will appear after clicking “Search for Full Text/Find Copy.”
If you have questions or problems, ask a librarian for assistance!
